Night at the Observatory

On a clear Saturday evening, Ms. Alvarez took her class to the observatory to look through a large telescope. A guide, Mr. Park, explained that the telescope needs a very dark room, so the lights were turned off. Each student looked at Saturn for one minute. Zara was surprised to see a thin ring around the planet. Because the night was cold, everyone wore heavy jackets. On the bus ride home, Zara drew the ring in her notebook so she would remember it.
