Text 1: On Monday, a new boy stood in the doorway of Room 12. He gripped his backpack straps and stared at his shoes. It was his first day.

Text 2: "Class, this is Jonah," said Ms. Grant. "He just moved here from Ohio." A few kids waved, but Jonah did not look up.

Text 3: At recess, Jonah sat alone on the bench. He kicked at the wood chips and watched the soccer game. Nobody asked him to play.

Text 4: Sam noticed him. Sam remembered his own first day last year, when nobody talked to him until lunch.

Text 5: Sam jogged over with the ball. "We need one more player," he said, even though both teams were full.

Text 6: Jonah looked up. For the first time that day, the corners of his mouth turned up.

Text 7: Jonah turned out to be fast. He passed the ball to Sam, and Sam scored right before the bell. Kids cheered for both of them.

Text 8: Walking back inside, Jonah asked, "Can I sit with you at lunch?" Sam grinned and said yes.

Text 9: At lunch, Jonah talked about his old dog in Ohio and how much he missed his best friend there. Sam listened and asked questions.

Text 10: The next morning, Jonah walked into Room 12 and went straight to the seat next to Sam. He was already talking.
