The Class Garden

Room 4 planted a garden behind the school. Every Monday a different pair of students watered the bean plants. When it was Eli's turn, it was raining, so he almost skipped it. Then he saw that the soil under the leaves was still dry. He carried a small can of water to each plant. By June the vines were tall, and the class picked a basket of beans to share.

1. What does this story show about taking care of a job? Give a reason.

2. How do you think Eli felt when the class picked the beans? Explain why.

1. What does this story show about taking care of a job? Give a reason.

Model answer: It shows you should check your job even when it seems done, because Eli found dry soil under the leaves. (Any full sentence that restates the question and uses the story is right.)

2. How do you think Eli felt when the class picked the beans? Explain why.

Model answer: He felt proud because his watering helped the beans grow. (Any full sentence that restates the question and uses the story is right.)
