The Broken Kite

Theo and his dad built a kite from sticks and red paper. At the park, the wind lifted it high, but then a gust tore a hole in the paper. Theo wanted to go home. His dad pulled a roll of tape from his pocket. Together they fixed the hole and sent the kite back into the sky. “It flies even better now,” said Theo.

1. Do you think Theo's dad is a good helper? Explain with details from the story.

2. What does Theo's last sentence tell you about how he felt? Explain.

The Broken Kite

Theo and his dad built a kite from sticks and red paper. At the park, the wind lifted it high, but then a gust tore a hole in the paper. Theo wanted to go home. His dad pulled a roll of tape from his pocket. Together they fixed the hole and sent the kite back into the sky. “It flies even better now,” said Theo.

1. Do you think Theo's dad is a good helper? Explain with details from the story.

Model answer: Yes, because he had tape ready and helped Theo fix the kite instead of going home. (Any full sentence that restates the question and uses the story is right.)

2. What does Theo's last sentence tell you about how he felt? Explain.

Model answer: It tells me Theo felt happy and proud, because he said the kite flies even better after the fix. (Any full sentence that restates the question and uses the story is right.)
