Two Mysteries Solved with Clues

Story 1: The Empty Bird Feeder

Every morning, Lucía filled the bird feeder outside her kitchen window. By lunchtime, it was always empty. "Someone is taking the seeds," she told her dad.

Lucía suspected Theo, the boy next door. She had seen him near the fence with a paper bag. But Dad said, "Find proof before you blame anyone."

So Lucía became a detective. She sprinkled flour on the ground under the feeder. The next day, she found tiny prints with four toes. She also saw seed shells scattered along the top of the fence.

Then she spotted the thief. A gray squirrel leaped from the fence onto the feeder and stuffed its cheeks with seeds. Lucía laughed. Later she learned that Theo's bag held only his lunch.

Story 2: The Muddy Footprints

One rainy afternoon, Marcus found muddy footprints across the clean hallway floor. His mom frowned. "Who did this?" she asked.

Marcus's little sister pointed at their dog, Pepper. Pepper did have muddy paws. But Marcus looked closely at the prints. They were not paw prints at all. They had zigzag lines, like the bottom of a boot.

Marcus checked the shoes by the door. His own rain boots had the same zigzag pattern. They were still dripping. He had forgotten to take them off after soccer practice.

Marcus took a deep breath. "Mom, it was me," he said. He grabbed a mop and cleaned the whole hallway. Mom smiled. She said that telling the truth was the best clue of all.
